Chiang, Dulles Open Talks Amid Formosa Crisis

By SPENCER MOOSA

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles and President Chiang Kai-shek opened their conference today against a backdrop of renewed Red cannonading of Formosa.

After a 2 1/2-hour meeting between Dulles and Chiang, a State Department spokesman said that "Mr. Dulles is not here to twist anybody's arm or apply any heat or pressure."

While the talks progressed, the Chinese Communists put their shore guns into action for the second time. The Defense Ministry said it fired only 362 shells but hit 11,500 Communist troops.

But there was no doubt the abrupt Red decision to end the Communist-imposed cease-fire had an important bearing on the Dulles-Chiang discussions.

Joseph Greene, special assistant to Dulles, said Dulles' first conference with Chiang was "a stock-taking of the present situation." He said the political and military situation was being assessed along with Communist propaganda.

Greene took this talk on reports that the United States might bring pressure on Chiang to cut down the off-shore islands in the hope of obtaining a permanent cease-fire. He said applying heat or pressure was not the policy.

Fire Destroys a Shoe Store

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP)—A Shoe Store was destroyed here, and another building damaged by separate fires in downtown Fort Smith last night.

Both structures are located on Garrison Ave., the main street. Foster's Shoe Store was gutted by a blaze that broke out about 6 p. m. It raged for two hours before firemen from 10 units brought it under control. Building and contents were completely destroyed. Firemen reported.

A crowd estimated by police to number about 3,000 watched the blaze. Smoke and water damaged six other businesses flanking the shoe store.

Fire broke out in the old Fort Smith Opera House, about four blocks away, at 8:30 p. m. It was brought under control after a short time. The building was being razed to make room for a new bus terminal.

Origin of the fires was not determined immediately.

Law Will Aid Unemployed Veterans

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—An undetermined number of Arkansas veterans will be covered under a new public law on unemployment compensation, J. L. Bland, state Employment Security Division director, said yesterday.

The law is effective Oct. 27. It provides a permanent unemployment insurance program similar to those received by veterans of World War II and the Korean War.

Benefits will be payable for weeks of unemployment, ending after Oct. 27, Bland said. He added that no payments will be made to applicants who draw money out of pay or lump-sum terminal leave cash.

To be eligible for compensation ex-servicemen must apply for a job with their local ESD office. Eligibility will be based on federal and state requirements. Bland said these requirements are, in general, 90 or more days continuous service in the Armed Forces after Jan. 31, 1955, or if active service terminated after Oct. 28, 1955. Release or discharge must be under conditions other than dishonorable.

Drive Chairman, Dr. Lloyd Grier, said that first reports indicate the campaign got off to a good start. He felt confident that Hope and Hopestead would respond generously as they always do for a very worthy cause.

Irvin Burke Family Most Outstanding

At the conclusion of the county judging of the Balanced Farming Program the judges had a difficult task of selecting a winner to represent Hempstead County in the district judging to be held in November.

After careful consideration of resource use, which is the best use of land, labor, capital and management, the family living and home atmosphere, and rural leadership, the judges decided that the Irvin Burke family of DeAnn was the most outstanding.

The Burkes operate a 350 acre farm of which 150 acres is fertile, well drained blackland soil in the old "Proving Ground" area. The farming enterprises consist of beef cattle, hogs, cotton, soybeans, corn and watermelons. They have a well rounded community interest and cooperative attitude toward community improvement. While Mr. Burke is president of the DeAnn RCI, a Farm Bureau member, and the family is very active in church work. They have one son who is attending college at Magnolia A&M and three daughters at home.

The other families who were in the competition were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Brown, Sweet Home; Mr. and Mrs. Leo Evans, Columbus; and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Seal, McCaskill. The judges wish to point out that these families have done an outstanding job and that they too are winners, since they have done much to improve their living conditions and increase their farm income to the point where they could be considered for this honor. This to itself should be an incentive to continue their good work.

The YFW will meet Wednesday night at 7:30 at the hut on Highway 87.

Gravel base was completed yesterday on 7.3 miles from the Junction of Highway 4, on the Shover Springs road to the county line. The route will be blacktopped.

At the National Funeral Directors conference recently held in Cleveland, R. V. Herndon Jr. of Hope was re-elected for a year term to the Funeral Service Examining Board and was also elected as secretary and treasurer for the coming year.

President Jack King reminds fans of the Booster Club meeting tonight at 7:30 at Jones Field House. Plans for a special team to the Conway game will be made at this meeting. A turn of the season's game will be shown to all members and fans are invited.

Bell Sounds for 300 White High School Students

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The bell at a private, segregated school rang today for approximately 300 white high school seniors, shut out of public schools here for more than six weeks.

Students, carrying text books and lunches, filed into a leased, red-brick building for the first day of classes conducted by the Little Rock Private School Corp.

The opening, even on its limited basis, marked a milestone in a prolonged battle to keep Little Rock schools segregated.

The corporation school was placed off-limits to newsmen. Even as the seniors were registering yesterday, a legal challenge to the private schools' operation was promised by the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People.

Another 407 students of all high school grades registered at the Second Baptist Church for classes which will start next Monday at Baptist High School, a branch facility opened by Ouachita Baptist College. These classes will be held in education buildings of the Second Baptist and two other Baptist churches. A tuition of $20 per month is charged.

The corporation school is free. W. C. Brashears, principal, said the corporation would have no space for 10th and 11th graders until Nov. 1, when it will get other quarters at an undisclosed location.

The anticipated quarters may be the educational building of a Little Rock Methodist Church. It was reported yesterday that officials of Highland Methodist Church will meet Oct. 31 to consider leasing their educational building to the corporation.

The senior high is holding classes in a 32-room building formerly used by the University of Arkansas Graduate Center. An estimated 3,700 high school students, including those at Horace Mann, a Negro institution, were shut out when Gov. Orval E. Faubus closed the city's four high schools Sept. 12 to block integration. The schools were scheduled to open Sept. 15.

About 600 of the students, white and Negro, have transferred to other schools either in or out of Arkansas.

A reported possibility that two Negro colleges would establish high school classes for displaced Little Rock Negro students was squelched yesterday.

The Rev. Roland Smith, chairman of the board of Arkansas Baptist College, said if his institution decided on the high school undertaking, it would be after federal courts act further on the issue of white private schools.

Arkansas Imports 28 Bears From Minnesota, Apparently One Pays Visit to Jonesboro

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Twenty-eight black bears, imported from the forests of Minnesota, have been released recently in Arkansas—once known as the "Bear State."

The bear which wandered in Jonesboro yesterday, caused a commotion, and then lumbered back to the Cache River bottoms, may have been one of them.

The animals were brought here by the Arkansas Game and Fish Commission to boost the state's declining bear population. Some day, the commission hopes, the state can again have a bear hunting season. The last such season was in 1927.

Sonny Canfield, a state game warden who was a member of the expedition to Minnesota, said 12 bears—eight females and four males—were placed in the Hurricane Lake public hunting area north of Little Rock in White County.

The Jonesboro bear apparently was one released in the Hurricane Lake area.

"They'll range perhaps 40 to 50 miles," Canfield said.

Canfield added that he had no idea how many bears might be in the Cache River bottoms "since there already were some in that area."

Another 16 Minnesota bears were turned loose in the remote Black Mountain area of Franklin County. This group included eight males and eight females.

Canfield said it has not been decided whether more black bears will be imported.

Arkansas once was known for its teeming bear population. They were hunted in the early 1900s by President Theodore Roosevelt in the Mississippi River bottoms near Helena.

However, as hunters took a heavy toll on the bear population, and Arkansas became sensitive about the "Bear State" designation, the Legislature in 1923 dropped the reference to the animal.

The title of "Wonder State" was adopted, and later Arkansas was redesignated the "Land of Opportunity."

Canfield and other Game and Fish Commission personnel who went to Minnesota reported that no Minnesota hunter had ever been injured by a black bear unless the animal had been wounded or cornered.

The bears only range into civilization when food is short. The Game and Fish Commission does not expect this to happen often in Arkansas.

There is more food for bears in Arkansas than in Minnesota, said Henry Gray, assistant federal aid coordinator for the commission.

Black bears feed mostly on acorns, hickory nuts, persimmons, grapes and muscadines, plus grubs, insects and carrion.

Gray estimates Arkansas' total bear population at 300, with most of them located in the Big Island area of southeast Arkansas and in Hot Spring and Scott counties. All are black bears.

The corporation also received a check for $2,002 which was donated by residents of Hazen, Ark. In addition to the contribution, Hazen, located 42 miles east of here, has taken about 30 Little Rock students into its high school.

Butler Takes Out After Southern Democrats

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A leading Southern Democrat urged his party's national chairman today to quit talking about civil rights and other issues that might damage party chances — and President Eisenhower described the Democrats as a hopelessly split party.

Sen. George A. Smathers (Minn.) in a letter to Chairman Paul M. Butler, urged that Butler "cease firing on the issues of 1900 and concentrate on winning the elections of 1958."

Smathers' statement came as a part of the feudings by Southern Democrats with their party's national chairman.

What aroused the ire of the Southerners was a statement Sunday by Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler. He laid out the party's platform for the 1960 election, saying the party would accept a strong civil rights plank in the 1960 Democratic platform or leave the party.

Several Dixie Democrats said Butler should leave the party. One called him a radical and another said he was pitching for "Northern radical votes and special minority interests."

In Wheeling, W. Va., Butler appeared to soften his stand somewhat Monday night, saying: "We're certainly not going to read anybody out of the party."

"Inevitably there will be some people who will not go along with the party platform," he added. Butler said he did not think such a split would hurt the Democrats in the 1960 presidential campaign.

Eisenhower, in a hard-hitting speech for Republican candidates in California, said the Democrats have "political schizophrenia" — split personality.

Without referring to the Butler-Dixie row, Eisenhower said the Democrats are divided into wide groups.

U. S. Policy Calls for Use of A-Weapons

WASHINGTON (AP)—General Nathan H. Twining said today that U. S. national policy "calls for the use of nuclear weapons in any case where such use would be advantageous to us."

The chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff added that national strategy calls for fighting an enemy "on our terms and not on his."

Twining, in an address to the Assn. of the U. S. Army Convention, cautioned the armed services against beliefs that only one military service should be built up for any particular type of war, general or limited.

In an apparent effort to offset Army pleas for greater air and larger manpower, Twining said that, although obviously desirable, had been accorded a relatively lower priority by the joint chiefs.

He urged the Army to concentrate development efforts on low-yield nuclear weapons and those which produce maximum fragmentation to saturate a given limited area.

Negro Pair to Pay for Rape

JACKSON, Mo. (AP)—Two Chicago Negroes who raped a white woman during a crime spree through southeast Missouri have received sentences designed to keep them in prison the rest of their lives.

Circuit Judge Marshall Craig sentenced Joseph Bradford, 21, to 107 years, and to be served consecutively, plus two life terms. Norris Williams, 32, was sentenced to 99 years plus life.

The jury which convicted Bradford and Williams of rape recommended sentences of 50 years imprisonment for each. But both men also pleaded guilty to other charges, including robbery, felonious assault, burglary and jail breaking.

Bradford and Williams started their rampage in Pemiscot County. They raped the white woman, holding her husband and child at gunpoint. Williams was caught after the pair exchanged shots with policemen at Steele. Bradford escaped but was arrested aboard a bus bound for Chicago.

Texas, Rice to Highlight SWC Play

The Southwest Conference featured itself Tuesday for two inter-sectional contests and two conference games, with the vice-Texas league match in the spotlight.

Rice has two conference victories and Texas one and the game just could decide who gets the coveted Cotton Bowl bid for New Year's day.

Rice upset Southern Methodist last week and apparently will be a toughie in conference play. Texas is undefeated for the year.

Texas Christian, also 2-0 in league warfare, takes the week off while Baylor 1-0 plays Texas A&M, 6-1.

Texas resumed contact work Tuesday. Coach Darrell Royal promoted J.B. Padgett to the first-string guard spot and end Butch Goodman and fullback Clay Branch were promoted to the alternate unit.

Rice worked out in sweat clothes Monday and watched films of last year's game with Texas. After passer Dan Meredith appeared likely to return to battle when Southern Methodist takes on Georgia Tech this weekend, Meredith issued two games from a hip injury.

And Dave Sherer, last year's college kicking champion, also appeared likely to return. He was injured in the first game with Ohio State. Coach Bill Meek said of Meredith, "he can cut again now, but I want to look at him another couple of days. We ought to be able to tell by Wednesday if he's all right. If he isn't, I'm not going to take any chances with him."

The Baylor Bears promoted quarterback Dilums Childress to the No. 3 spot. Robert Sarr was moved to No. 2 to replace injured quarterback Bill McMillen.

Coach Sam Boyd sent the Bears through a light workout mapping a defense against A&M's single wing attack.

The Aggies reviewed movies of the TCU game and heard a snoring report on Baylor. The first two units worked in sweat clothes.

Arkansas, a consistent loser this year, got the dolorous word on Saturday's opponent, Mississippi. Coach Wilson Matthews said, "they look undrained." He said every phase of the Rebel game impressed him.

The Bears drilled in sweat clothes, then watched films of the loss to Texas.

Texas Christian, which meets Baylor Nov. 1, watched movies of last week's victory and warmed up in sweat clothes.

Texas Tech, a member of the league, but not eligible for the championship, took the day off. The Red Raiders meet Tulane Oct. 31.

Fairbus Names Clark ALC Representative

Clark had served on the council as the governor's representative during the past two years. He also represented Fairbus at the last presidential inauguration.

The Legislative Council next Monday will begin its biennial study of proposed bills for state agencies and institutions. The council will make recommendations to the 1959 Legislature.

ly separated wings — one in the South and "at the other extreme" the stronger wing, dominated by political radicals.

"In Congress," he said, "they crash headlong into each other on every important domestic issue... In short, our opposition can offer America only deadlocked government — government that wages war on itself."

Democratic chief Butler and Southern Democrats have been on the outs at various times over the past few years. His Sunday jab at the Dixie faction had some of the Southerners seething.

North Carolina Democratic Chairman Woodrow W. Jones said Butler "does not own the Democratic party and he does not determine who is going to stay in the party or who is going to leave the party."

Texas Party Chairman Jim Lindsey characterized Butler's statement as "the same old political appeal for Northern radical votes and special minority interests."

Calls for Butler's removal from the party came from Rep. Kenneth A. Roberts (D-Ala.) and Frank Boykin (D-Ala.).

Meanwhile, Vice President Nixon — whose campaign tactics have drawn heavy criticism from Democrats — hoped to start an Eastern swing with a stop at Wilmington, Del. Nixon returned to Washington Monday night from Colorado Springs, Colo., where he battled a cold during the weekend. Nixon campaigned on the West Coast last week.

He goes on to Baltimore tonight for what he described as a major speech on foreign policy.

Former President Truman — who makes some Republicans sear with his thrusts at the GOP — headed for a Democratic fund-raising dinner at New Castle, Del., tonight. He spent Monday plumping for re-election of Democratic Gov. Averell Harriman of New York.

Three Republican leaders today jumped on Truman for his charge last Saturday that Nixon has used character assassination.

Republican National Chairman Meade ALCorn said Truman and the Democrats have "unleashed p

The Nationalists said 11,520 shells fell in about 2½ hours and "then after a full sprade shelling continued through the night, running the total to 14,729 by 6 a.m."

Peiping radio said the bombardment was resumed because U.S. warships escorted Nationalist supply ships to Quemo. Both Washington and the Nationalists denied this. Today Peiping radio said it had "incontrovertible proof" and named three U.S. destroyers it said were involved.

The secretary of state arrived in midmorning in a military jet after a long flight from England. He said his talks with Chiang "are not aimed at reaching any new agreements."

"We hope, through re-examination, to consolidate a relationship of mutual trust and confidence which is of immense value to all the free world," he said.

The secretary had been expected to press for a smallerarrison on Quemo, equipped with more powerful weapons, a garrison which the Reds could not consider an invasion threat. But which would be sufficient to protect the offshore islands from a Communist landing. But he said during a stop in Alaska.

It is obvious that if the Chinese Communists resume their fighting to achieve their political goals, any consultations cannot have the same scope and character that would have been possible if there were a cease-fire.

Dulles went from the airport to conferences with top U.S. officials on Formosa before meeting Chiang.

Dulles was accompanied to see Chiang by Walter Robertson, who as assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs is credited in Washington with molding U.S. policy on China.

As Dulles left the airport, a Nationalist C-46 landed with the first load of casualties from the renewed bombardment of the Quemoys. The number of wounded aboard was not revealed but an

Indictment Against Judge Is Dismissed

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—An indictment against Cleveland County Judge J. F. Hughes and J. L. Harris, Kingsland grocer, was dismissed in U.S. District Court here yesterday.

The indictment was issued Oct. 1 by a federal grand jury. It charged Hughes and Harris gave information on highway right-of-way purchases that caused the state Highway Department to make a false statement to the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads.

A technicality caused the dismissal. The indictment, specifically charged the two men knew the $40,880.43 certified by the Highway Department was in excess of actual costs of right of way for U. S. Highway 70 near Kingsland. Harris had a contract with Hughes permitting Harris to negotiate with property owners for their land for removal of obstructions.

Attorneys for Hughes and Harris called for dismissal of the indictment on grounds that it failed to charge an offense. They stated in a motion the indictment was based on a federal statute under which making a false statement is an offense.

The motion contended this was not the same as the charge contained in the indictment, which is that Hughes and Harris "con-

Ike Lambasts Democrats as Radicals

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH
LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Eisenhower lambasted Democrats Monday night as political radicals and called for an end to Republican "family bickering" in the party drive to capture control of Congress.

The President flies north to San Francisco today for two more campaign addresses after making perhaps the hardest hitting speech returned to Hope with them.

Eisenhower was interrupted by applause 35 times at the party rally where nearly every seat in the auditorium was filled. The big guest round came when he said that under this administration: "Ladies and gentlemen, things are good, and getting better every day."

Eisenhower came to California mainly to boost the candidacy of U.S. Sen. William F. Knowland in the race for the governorship, and the bid of GOP Gov. Goodwin J. Knight for Knowland's Senate seat—and to try to heal a party split.

The split is over Knowland moving into the gubernatorial contest after Knight had announced he intended to seek re-election, and of his political career to a cheering crowd of about 8,500 GOP workers in Los Angeles Shrine Auditorium.

In a peppery, fighting mood for the first time on this coast-to-coast tour, Eisenhower sailed into the Democrats as a party "hopelessly split right down the middle." He touched off a round of laughter in saying they have political schizophrenia, or split personality.

"The opposition record," said Eisenhower, "is one of ever higher taxes — of dollars worth 50 cents — of sky high prices — of an economy harassed into producing fewer jobs, chronic unemployment, labor strife and fear of the future."

The President said the record of the administration on the other hand is one that justifies support for Republican candidates from coast to coast — in the fields of foreign policy, defense, agriculture, and the nation's economy, and others.

U. S. Output of Goods Is Almost Back

WASHINGTON (AP) — The country's output of goods and services has bounced nearly three quarters of the way back from the recession low toward the record level that preceded the slump, government statisticians estimated.

The October "Economic Indicators" published by the Senate House Economic Committee Monday shows a 440 billion dollar annual rate in the third 1938 quarter. The committee says the figure, for what economists call the gross national product, is a preliminary estimate by President Eisenhower's Council of Economic Advisers.

It compares with the high of $445,000,000,000 set in the third quarter of 1937 and the recession low of $425,800,000,000 in the January-February-March period this year.

The estimated rise from the low point represents recovery of $19,200,000,000 of the $19,800,000,000 drop during the recession. It cannot, however, be considered a precise measure—there was price inflation in the meantime.

The July-August-September estimate is up 11 billion from the annual rate figure of the second quarter this year.

Some government economists say they look for a new record rate of 450 billion in the last 1938 quarter, just getting under way.

Unemployment Claims Decline

Bobcats Face Single Wing at Magnolia

Boasting six straight victories, the Hope Bobcats enter the final half of their grid schedule Friday night and the opposition will be Magnolia there, in a district contest.

"Our boys played some good, hard, nose-on football against Fairview last Friday night. The Fairview Coach told us after the game that his boys came over to win and he was really discouraged at the outcome as he knew we played without three of our boys who were injured in the Crossett contest. He and his boys were ready for a win." Coach John Pierce said Monday.

The Coaches hope they can get all their boys back as the second half of the schedule gets underway. "We hope they'll go through the last half with the same spirit they had in the first six games," the Coaches said.

"We can't let up in a single game and expect to win. We still have some tough ones in front of us and Magnolia is one of them.

"Our scouts, Blake and Culp, said Magnolia hits and runs hard and looked awfully good last Friday, in beating Arkadelphia 25 to 13. They'll be the first single wing team we've met this year and their tailbacks is next to Ronny Harris of Texarkana. He runs, passes, kicks and hits real well. The Scouts reported.

"We hope to have Rowe, Duke and Thurman back," the Coaches said. "Magnolia always plays Hope tough there as we are expecting another rugged contest this year. We just hope our boys get ready for another bruising game," the Coaches said.

Dinner guests of honor in Mexico were served a chicken's left leg. It's more tender, they say, because a chicken sleeps on its right leg.

Detroit Coach Says Need Is for Backing

By DAVE DILES
Associated Press Sports Writer

DETROIT (AP)—A belligerent George Wilson said today his Detroit Lions could do with more encouragement and less criticism for their poor start in the National Football League race.

"If we can get the front-runners off our backs, we'll be in far better shape," he said. "We have enough trouble winning without having to put up with that kind of stuff."

Coch Wilson, his aides and the players have been criticized by the press and the fans for the club's failure to win in four starts after capturing the world championship a season ago.

"Not one of the coaches and not one of the players built us up as champions this year," he added. "The people who are upset most are those who figured it would be a simple matter to win another title. Well, I got news for them—it ain't that easy."

The Lions lost their last three games on the preseason schedule and have only a tie with Green Bay in four regular season games.

"I don't have to make excuses for this club," Wilson said. "Anybody halfway smart knows we lost two top men, Steve Junker and Jerry Reichow, with injuries before the season ever started. And our regular fullback, John Henry Johnson, hasn't even played in the last two games."

There are 10 new faces on this year's team, including eight rookies. Wilson defended the heavy turnover by saying, "A lot of old players—the Browns, the Bears, in fact, practically every team in the league—they have fallen apart because they hung on to guys too long. We've had good reasons for making our moves."

Wilson said the team's defense is the only one that has not changed. "We've had good reasons for making our moves," he said.

Prior to November 1883, different localities in the United States used different local times. To end the resulting confusion, the railroads adopted four time zones as the standard. At noon, Nov. 18, 1883, these four standard time zones were put into effect on the railroads and people began to set their watches by them. It was not until 1918 that Congress passed the Standard Time Act, officially recognizing the railroad times.

Figures Hope to Defeat Magnolia

By JOHN R. STARR
Associated Press Sports Writer

Little Rock Central, playing its schedule on borrowed time, comes to a crossroads this week. The Tigers invade El Dorado in the unusual position of needing a victory to stay in the Big Nine Conference race.

And the Bengals go into the contest the underdog, something they haven't been to an Arkansas team since 191 — the last year they failed to win the title.

So we're picking against them in this wise:

El Dorado 28, Central 13: Not a smashing defeat but it will be a sweet one for the Wildcats none of whom were in school when El Dorado last beat the Tigers in 1945.

Port Smith 21, Texarkana 13: A crucial contest for the Grizzlies who still are riding high from the 19-6 upset of Central two weeks ago. Texarkana gave the Tigers trouble last week and they'll give Port Smith more, but not enough.

Jonesboro 14, Blytheville 13: And that's the kind of score that could whip up the fans until this natural rivalry is dropped again. Let's hope the loser takes it gracefully in a bad year for both teams.

Little Rock Hall 21, Benton 0: After four straight misses on the Warriors, we rode with them in last week's victory over Van Buren. Stick with a winner, we always say.

North Little Rock 20, Conway 7: The Wildcats continue to come back from that humiliating defeat by Hall. Hot Springs felt the sting of Northside's last week and Conway isn't in Hot Springs' class.

Pine Bluff 14, Camden 7: And that's one that we wouldn't back with a caboose. The Zebias can be a good ball club when Gordon Quest is passing right by. Camden is dangerous in its own back yard.

Also, Fayetteville over Joplin, Mo.; Rogers over Harrison, Springfield over Bentonville, Helena over Stuttgart, West Memphis over Newport, Catholic over Morrilton, Malvern over Jacksonville, Mabelvale over Heber Springs, Russellville over Clarksville, Corsair over Arkadelphia, Hope over Magnolia and De Queen over Smackover.

Auburn, in second place last week, dropped to fifth this week as a result of its tie with Georgia Tech. and Louisiana State jumped from 9th to 8th through its convincing victory over Kentucky.

Texas climbed from seventh to fourth. Clemson remained in 10th place.

Matter of Fact

Asia is unique among continents in that its major rivers radiate like the spokes of a wheel from the center of the land. The reason for this is that the great plateaus and lofty mountains are in the middle of Asia instead of being located along the rim, as they are in the Americas, Africa and Australia. The rivers flow down from the mountains to the outside lowlands.

Upper sector of the lens magnifies up to 300 per cent for distance vision; center gives normal side vision; and lower sector magnifies up to 2,000 per cent for reading and close work. The unique lens, it is claimed, will enable as many as half of the nation's 500,000 partially blind to regain youthful sight.

Proposal to Red Russia Being Drafted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five Allied nations today begin drafting proposals they will make to the Soviet Union to guard both Western and Communist nations against surprise military attack.

Their joint plan is expected to embrace President Eisenhower's "open skies" aerial inspection system and to propose around observation posts on each other's territory.

The Allied views will be presented to the Soviet Union in Geneva Nov. 10 at a conference billed as an East-West study of the practical aspects of minimizing the possibility of surprise attack.

The Western hope is that the Soviet Union will agree on a technical level on the nature and scope of inspection safeguards needed to reassure each side, leaving final acceptance of the plan for diplomats later.

The initial Western strategy session gets under way at the State Department with a meeting of military, scientific and foreign policy representatives of the United States, Britain, France, Italy and Canada.

Will Send Small Animal Into Orbit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force has plans to place a "specially trained small animal" into an orbit around the earth—but not until there's a good chance of bringing it back alive.

The animal would be in a space capsule equipped to radio back to earth information on the animal's performance and physiological condition.

The Russians got similar reports on the dog Laika, sent aloft in a Soviet Sputnik last year. No effort was made to return the dog to earth.

Brig. Gen. Donald D. Flickinger, Air Force director of life sciences, outlined that service's plans in the Air University Quarterly Review, published at Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala.

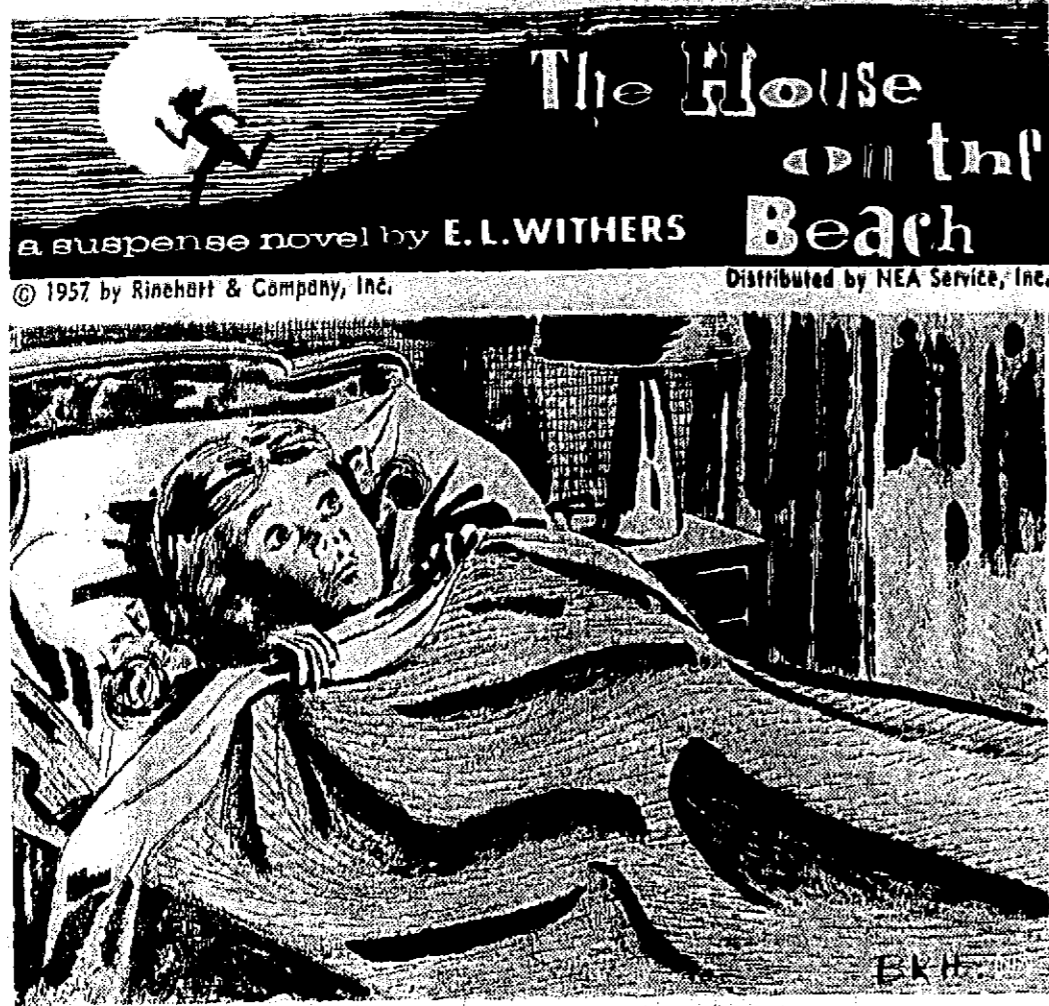

He said the attempt would be made provided techniques for the recovery of the space capsule and its occupant are satisfactorily developed.

Guard Bureau to Hold Conference

NOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — The National Guard Bureau will hold its annual conference here today through Thursday for the 4th Army Area. The area includes Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

About 200 high ranking Regular Army, and National Guard officers are expected at the meeting. They will be headed by Maj. Gen. Edgar C. Erickson, chief of the National Guard Bureau at Washington, D.C., and Maj. Gen. D.W. McGowan, chief of the Guard's Army units.

Officials said all conference sessions will be closed.

If she could only sit up in bed and scream for her mother! But her mother was gone.

Chapter I

Katherine came awake suddenly in the black room. For a moment she did not open her eyes; she could tell that all around her was darkness, but the insides of her eyelids gave her a funny feeling, as if they glowed slightly, as if someone had just flashed a bright light on her for an instant and then quickly put it out.

She was nervous anyway, even though it has been almost a week since the funeral; this was Wednesday night; the funeral had been last Friday. But in those five days between it hadn't seemed to her that anything was getting any better — sometimes, in fact, worse — and ever since then people had treated her strangely. The word "orphan" hung just out of earshot. She knew what that word meant. She had none without a father for a long time now. But when she thought about her mother—never to see about her mother—never her agent—all the nervousness rushed back in on her. It made her nervous then Aunt Millicent tried to make her eat her meals, and when old Amy, red-eyed, came into her room in the evenings to get her undressed.

She listened intently—straining her neck and shoulders—but still without opening her eyes. Thirty feet away, behind the sliding wall of glass panels, she could hear the waves rushing on the beach. There were sounds in her own room, too, she could hear herself breathing, she could hear her watch ticking on the table by the bed, and the blood pounding in her ears, and in spite of lying quietly, carefully, there was a faint rustle against the sheet. Someone was in the room with her; she knew it as certainly as if she had seen that person.

Very cautiously she opened her eyes. Perhaps they were near enough to see her face; perhaps their own eyes were enough accustomed to the dark that they could watch her eyes opening and know that she suspected their presence.

Lying very still, not moving a muscle, she rolled her eyes to the left until she saw the great vague blur of the glass wall looking out over the beach. She could only see poorly without her glasses. They were on the table beside her watch, but she did not dare to reach out her hand and pick them up. She knew it would make a noise—the sound of the sheet being moved, and the white metal frames like as she tried to pick them up.

She knew it would be brave if, all in one move, she could pick up her glasses and turn on the light. If she sprang up and did it all in a second, whoever was in the room would not have a chance to move. There would be no time to hide, or time to run away. But she could not make her arm move. She was too frightened; she did not want to know who was in the room.

She moved her eyes slowly away from the windows and looked straight up toward the ceiling. The darkness was impenetrable; it had no dimensions, no depth; she might as well have been out under the open sky. But she tried hard to focus her gaze and see only a few inches above her face. If there was anything that close — even an outline — she would be able to see it, but as it got farther away, it would blur and run off like water colors.

She wanted now to get her glasses and run away without turning on the light. But if she ran out the door, she would have to go through that black pit to get there. That would be the worst of all, feeling her way along inch by inch, trying to make no noise, thinking at every second that she might bump into whoever was there.

But she could not run toward the glass wall and the beach either. She would be silhouetted against the gray square; and anyway she could not get out quickly enough. She would have to press the button and wait while the machinery in the basement began to hum, and the mechanism caught, and the panels slid back on top of each other. By the time she had waited for all that, they would have caught up with her, grabbed her, and . . .

If only she could sit up in bed and scream for her mother! But her mother was gone. Everything was gone. She had walked down and seen the last of her mother; the living room five days ago wearing her pink lace dress, lying stiff and painted in her casket with little peach-colored velvet tufts rolling up on each side of her. And Dr. Treslove had stood up and talked about her, and then they had all gotten into cars and gone to the cemetery.

Everyone had said, "You're a big girl. You're 12 years old, aren't you? Your mother would want you to be brave."

But she wasn't 12 years old yet. She wouldn't be 12 till next month.

She would have to take care of herself. She rolled her eyes back across the room to the windows in an agony of terror.

Nothing went between her and the window to cut the grayness. Her heart pounded harder and harder, and finally she could no longer hold her breath and she gave a gasp; then she held her breath again and listened. She had an uneasy feeling — which grew with every second — that she was looking at the wrong side of the room. Whoever it was she wouldn't be 12 till next side of the bed, next to the table. The back of her head was toward that side.

She turned suddenly and peered into the blackness. She could see nothing at all.

She had held her breath for a long time, and was just ready to let it out when she heard something at the foot of the bed. It was very soft, but very distinct in the stillness. She could not tell exactly what it was, and she lay paralyzed waiting to hear it again. But it was not repeated. It had been a funny sound, skin brushing against fabric, or an uncertain foot feeling its way along the carpet.

There were people in the room with her, people who were moving cautiously along at the foot of her bed.

She had to get out of the room. If she lay there any longer, she would die. She knew she would. She would have to cross that black gulf full of horrors to get to the door, but she would force herself to do it.

She began to move very slowly and carefully. She pulled one hand out from under the sheet and stretched it toward the table. Frightened as she was, she did not dare to go out without her glasses. She knew that when she touched them and started to pick them up she must not allow them to make any sound; they would know at once that she was getting away. Her fingers touched the edge of the table and crawled slowly across the top. She felt the base of the lamp. Her wrist brushed against the edge of her watch, and for an instant she thought she was going to knock it off on the floor. Even falling on the carpet it would be audible. But it did not fall. Then she found the glasses. They were lying upside down with the lenses against the table top. If she picked them up straight they would not open or make a noise until she was ready. She slid them silently toward her, the glass rubbing like oil on the table, until she could hold them clear, more concrete before her hand, opened the stems one at a time, and put the glasses on.

The darkness suddenly became clearer, more concrete before her eyes. The lines of the windows stood out plainly across the room, and even though the darkness was as complete as ever, she felt reassured; if there were anything to see, she could see it. There was silence all around her—only her breathing, and the ticking of her watch, and the waves breaking on the beach.

She propped her elbows on either side and pushed herself until she could raise her head out of the pillow without making it crinkle. She started to fold the sheet back, lifting it very slowly so that it would make no betray-

Court Wants County to Pay Judges' Dues

CROSSETT, Ark. (AP) — The Ashley Grand Jury yesterday recommended that the quorum court appropriate money to pay dues of County Judge W.T. Higginbotham in the Arkansas County Judges Assn.

The recommendation was contained in a grand jury report on an investigation, requested by Higginbotham himself, of conduct of county business by the judge's office.

The report said the jury investigated all phases of county business and found the judge's office was conducted "in an exemplary manner."

Higginbotham requested the investigation after a taxpayer's suit was filed in Ashley Chancery Court challenging his right to pay $50 annual dues to the judges' association with county money. The suit has not been set for trial.

The report said the jury felt Higginbotham "was justified" in paying such dues with public funds.

ing sound; and then she thought that if they had moved around to the side of the bed, everything she did would be outlined against the grayness. The sheet being lifted would make a black bump against the windows, so she let it down again slowly and began inching her way across the bed under it.

Finally she came to the edge, dropped her feet over until her toes felt the carpet under them, and then she sat up straight. She when she stood up, and she knew the springs would squeak, nerved herself for it.

She decided that when the noise came she would jump out away from the bed, so that if they lunged at her they might miss her. She stood up abruptly, and leapt out into the room.

The bed did squeak; and the instant she heard that sound everything else was suddenly gone from her mind. The "bravery" she was supposed to be showing — which she had just found — evaporated in a tide of panic that drained her strength out of her.

There was an instant's tingling all over her body. She wanted desperately to be able to creep stealthily across the room as she had planned, or even to do anything except stand there waiting. And as if that urgent wish released her, she was aware—after she had already started—that she was running across the room toward the door, frenzied as a trapped mouse, scurrying croakily over the carpet, making a little pattering noise with her bare feet.

The hall was a little lighter than the bedroom had been, and with her glasses on she glanced quickly around it. She could run to Aunt Millicent's room, but she would be asleep, and her room was down the length of the house. She would be caught before she got that far. There was a window at the end of the hall, a paler gray than the one in her bedroom had been, and in the dim glow she saw the big, modern, ornamental chair.

This TOO is Texas Eastern

Ready for Winter with 105 billion cubic feet of gas in underground storage

When the icy blasts of winter sweep across the country, demands for fuel to heat homes and offices call for deliveries of extremely large volumes of natural gas.

Texas Eastern is ready and able to satisfy these demands through use of one of the world's largest underground storage reservoirs for natural gas—Oakford Storage Pool in southwestern Pennsylvania. This pool was developed jointly with another gas company and one-half of its capacity is available for use by each company.

Oakford is able to hold in storage 105 billion cubic feet of gas. To do this, two depleted gas sand formations are utilized. Oakford was selected for this purpose because its sands are ideally adapted to hold the gas and prevent leakage, and assure high deliverability when it comes time to remove the gas for winter use.

All Summer, when demand is least, Texas Eastern pumps large volumes of gas into Oakford replacing what was used during the previous cold weather season. When winter arrives, the pool is full and the gas is removed as needed to fill the increased demands.

Texas Eastern combines long-distance pipelines and underground storage to assure a continuing, ample supply—the year 'round—of this clean, economical and adaptable fuel—NATURAL GAS.
